Solar panel quality warranty period

Overview

Solar panels generally come with two warranties: The product warranty covers the equipment and typically guarantees at least 10-12 years without fail, and the power or performance warranty often guarantees at least 90% production at 10 years and 80% at 25 years.

Solar panels generally come with two warranties: The product warranty covers the equipment and typically guarantees at least 10-12 years without fail, and the power or performance warranty often guarantees at least 90% production at 10 years and 80% at 25 years.

A standard solar panel warranty should come with at least 10 years of protection, though many premium options now offer 25 or even 30+ years of coverage. Most solar panel warranties won't reimburse for labor costs associated with installing new equipment or shipping fees for replacement parts.

While many home appliances typically come with a basic warranty offering free replacements within a specified period, solar panels are protected by various types of warranties that cover a range of potential issues. The product warranty provides complimentary replacement of your solar panels in.

A performance warranty guarantees that a panel will maintain a certain percentage of its original power output over a period of time. This is also known as a power output warranty. It's important to note that warranties vary by manufacturer, location, and panel type. We'll provide some general.

Solar panel warranties should be a major consideration when choosing a panel brand and a solar panel installation company. They come in two main varieties—equipment warranties and production warranties—and both can save you quite a lot of money in the long run. Equipment warranties can insulate you.

The duration of contractor warranties can vary. Some contractors offer warranties ranging from 1 to 10 years, while others provide 15 to 25 years. Typically, contractor warranties encompass issues like roof penetrations, wiring, workmanship, and the overall structural integrity of the installation.

Most brands guarantee 10-25 years, but high-end manufacturers like Maxeon throw in a ridiculous 40-year warranty, which is wild when you think about it. That's almost as long as some people's mortgages! Then there's the performance warranty, which is all about how well your panels keep churning out.
